How to read: each column is that seat’s full open-shove threshold (“Q4s+” = all suited queens down to Q4s); “–” = no hands of that type. The BB column is all dashes because the BB never open-shoves — if it folds to the BB it’s a walk (you already win). Ranges nest $CO \subseteq BTN \subseteq SB$.

If anyone has already shoved, DO NOT use this page — use the Calling chart. Calling your open range vs a shove costs ≈ 20 bb/100.

Notes

- The SB+ column is mostly blind defense (≈ 0.3 bb/100, almost all of it recovering the 0.4 you’d forfeit by folding). The valuable part is the offsuit kings (K2o+); the low suited tail (84s, 74s, 63s, 53s...) is a rounding error – skip it if simplifying.
- Break-even hands wobble: single-hand cells sit near 0 EV and can flip with tiny changes – don’t sweat the exact edge.
- Button range is a safe SB default: every BTN hand is also a +EV SB shove, so “BTN range in the SB” never misfires – it just leaves ≈ 0.3 bb/100 of the fringe behind.
- Constant 8 bb stacks (auto buy-in / winnings withdrawn) $\Rightarrow$ chip-EV = money-EV, no ICM.

Calling Chart — all seats facing an all-in shove · 4-handed · 8 bb · Nash

Use this ONLY when someone has already moved all-in in front of you. Top groups are your seat; sub-columns are the shover's seat (tightest shover first). Within a group “—” = same as the column to its left — you call wider vs a looser shover. (CO acts first, so it never faces a shove.)

Facing 2+ all-ins (over-call): the table is for one shover. If someone has already called the all-in ahead of you, call only premiums — about 66+, ATs+, KTs+, AK, AQ ($\approx$ half as wide). You must beat two strong ranges, and a cold-caller is never bluffing. Tighten more if an early/tight seat called; stay a touch wider if both players in were late (BTN/SB). With all three all-in, tighten again to $\approx$ TT+ / AQ+ / AK. (Only the SB and BB can ever face this; the BTN faces at most one.)
